Questions to Consider:

- Did using the AI tool make the creative process easier or more difficult? Why?
 - How do you feel about the final product? Do you think AI can truly "create," or is it just following patterns and instructions?
 - In what ways might AI be useful for future creative projects, and where do you think human creativity is still essential?

Teacher's Notes:

- Encourage students to focus on the balance between AI assistance and human creativity, highlighting the importance of using AI as a tool, not a replacement.
- Discuss how AI tools can help speed up the creative process while still requiring human input to refine and personalize the work.
- Facilitate a conversation about the limitations of AI in truly understanding the emotional and subjective aspects of human creativity.

This worksheet guides students through a creative process that uses AI as a complement to their original ideas, helping them reflect on how technology can assist but not replace human creativity.
